

COMMA RULES MINI-POSTERS

FREEBIE IN THREE COLORS

Teacher Instructions

Thanks for downloading my FREE Comma Usage Rules posters! This set of posters covers 8 different comma rules and comes in three different colors: blue/teal, orange, and gray. A fun comma usage mistake poster is included as well.

If you are looking for a lesson to teach your students about the rules of correct comma usage, check out my Comma Usage Rules Lesson & Activities product, of which these posters are a part of. This lesson has students working together in small groups to analyze example sentences and come up with comma rules themselves. This product includes a lesson plan, 8 small group sheets, student note sheets, two choices practice sheets, exit slip, and answer keys.

Click here to view this product.

Let's eat Grandpa!
Let's eat, Grandpa!

Correct
punctuation
saves lives.

COMMA RULE #1

Use a comma to separate items in a list.

I need to buy bread, apples, and bananas.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to introduce or end a quotation.

"I really enjoyed the movie," said John.
Terry replied, "I hated it."

COMMA RULE #3

Use a comma to separate introductory information from the rest of the sentence.

After I finish my homework, I am going outside to play.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to separate a transition from the sentence.

First, I am going to watch TV.
After that, I will do my chores.

COMMA RULE #5

Use commas to separate an appositive (extra information).

John, our team leader, will be going over the directions.

COMMA RULE #6

Use a comma and a conjunction to separate two sentences.

I love the beauty of winter, but I absolutely despise the snow.

COMMA RULE #7

Use a comma to separate a city from a state and a year from a date.

I visited Panama City Beach, Florida
on March 19, 2014.

COMMA RULE #8

Use a comma to separate two or more adjectives before a noun (except for colors or numbers).

I really hate this hot, humid weather.

Let's eat Grandpa!
Let's eat, Grandpa!

Correct
punctuation
saves lives.

COMMA RULE #1

Use a comma to separate items in a list.

I need to buy bread, apples, and
bananas.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to introduce or end a quotation.

"I really enjoyed the movie," said John.
Terry replied, "I hated it."

COMMA RULE #3

Use a comma to separate introductory information from the rest of the sentence.

After I finish my homework, I am going outside to play.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to separate a transition from the sentence.

First, I am going to watch TV.
After that, I will do my chores.

COMMA RULE #5

Use commas to separate an appositive (extra information).

John, our team leader, will be going over the directions.

COMMA RULE #6

Use a comma and a conjunction to separate two sentences.

I love the beauty of winter, but I absolutely despise the snow.

COMMA RULE #7

Use a comma to separate a city from a state and a year from a date.

I visited Panama City Beach, Florida
on March 19, 2014.

COMMA RULE #8

Use a comma to separate two or more adjectives before a noun (except for colors or numbers).

I really hate this hot, humid weather.

Let's eat Grandpa!
Let's eat, Grandpa!

Correct
punctuation
saves lives.

COMMA RULE #1

Use a comma to separate items in a list.

I need to buy bread, apples, and
bananas.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to introduce or end a quotation.

"I really enjoyed the movie," said John.
Terry replied, "I hated it."

COMMA RULE #3

Use a comma to separate introductory information from the rest of the sentence.

After I finish my homework, I am going outside to play.

COMMA RULE #2

Use a comma to separate a transition from the sentence.

First, I am going to watch TV.
After that, I will do my chores.

COMMA RULE #5

Use commas to separate an appositive (extra information).

John, our team leader, will be going over the directions.

COMMA RULE #6

Use a comma and a conjunction to separate two sentences.

I love the beauty of winter, but I absolutely despise the snow.

COMMA RULE #7

Use a comma to separate a city from a state and a year from a date.

I visited Panama City Beach, Florida
on March 19, 2014.

COMMA RULE #8

Use a comma to separate two or more adjectives before a noun (except for colors or numbers).

I really hate this hot, humid weather.

TEACH WITH ERIKA

Secondary Language Arts & Social Studies

Blog * Visit my store * Follow me

You May Also Be Interested In...

Credits: KG Fonts * Clip Art by Lindy * Meredith Anderson * The Candy Class